ORDER DENYING MOTIONS FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER
AND
ORDERING REDACTION OF EDUCATION RECORDS

THIS MATTER is before the Court on Defendants' "Motions for Protective Order" filed through their respective counsel on or about May 25, 2012, pursuant to Florida Rule of Criminal Procedure 3.220 and Chapter 119, Florida Statutes (2012). After reviewing Defendants' Motions, the Orlando Sentinel's Response, Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University's Response, the court file, the record, and the arguments presented at the June 1, 2012, hearing, the Court finds as follows:

FACTS

In early May of 2012, the Associated Press (AP) and the Orlando Sentinel (Sentinel) made a public records request to the Clerk of Court in Orange County, Florida, seeking the Probable Cause Affidavits used as a basis for the Court's issuance of the arrest warrants in the above-styled case. However, because the Probable Cause Affidavits were not filed with the Clerk, the media's request was denied. Accordingly, the media made a similar public records request to the Office of the State Attorney for the Ninth Judicial Circuit. This request was also denied on the basis that the Affidavits were discovery and, therefore, exempt from disclosure.

The AP and Sentinel then moved to intervene in the above-styled case for the purpose of seeking a Court order mandating immediate release of the Probable Cause Affidavits. The Court struck the media's Motions on the basis that the Affidavits were not included in the contents of the court file. The Court found the AP and Sentinel should seek a writ of mandamus to compel the State Attorney's Office to disclose the requested records.

Thereafter, on May 23, 2012, the State Attorney's Office released more than 2,300 pages of documents to the media. This records release contained hundreds of pages of education records that were redacted in their entirety. Accordingly, the media made a second public records request to the State Attorney's Office seeking the disclosure of the redacted documents.

On May 25, 2012, the State Attorney's Office advised Defendants' counsel:

that [their] client[s'] application[s] and school file[s] from Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University will be released to the media on Tuesday, May 29, 2012, as part of a public records request unless [they] file a motion on behalf of [their] client[s].

Accordingly, Defendants filed, through counsel, the "Motions for Protective Order," which are the subject of the instant Order. The Sentinel was granted leave to intervene for purposes of this limited issue.

The education records at issue were disclosed pursuant to a lawfully issued subpoena duces tecum to Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University (Florida A&M University) dated December 8, 2011, which provided in pertinent part:

Pursuant to an official criminal investigation being conducted by this office of a suspected felony, you are not to disclose the existence of this request. Any such disclosure could obstruct and impede law enforcement investigations. Such obstruction may be a violation of the law, subject to criminal penalties!

(See Subpoenas, attached). Florida A&M University complied with the subpoenas without providing written notice to and receiving consent from the subject students. These unredacted education records were subsequently rediscovered to all Defendants in the above-styled case.

Defendants and Florida A&M University have taken the position that these education records remain confidential and exempt from Florida's Public Records Act, and cannot be rediscovered without prior written notice to and consent of the eligible students. Florida A&M University has since directed the Registrar to provide such notification to determine whether there are any objections to the rediscovery of the unredacted education records.

At the June 1, 2012, hearing, the State Attorney's Office provided the Court a copy of the subject education records for purposes of an in camera review. The records consist of Defendants' and eighteen other students' – presumably witnesses – unredacted Undergraduate Admission Application Packages. These admission packages include, but are not limited to: (1) applications; (2) residency classifications; (3) high school transcripts; (4) college transcripts; (5) personal statements; (6) letters of recommendation; (7) certificates of immunization; (8) FCAT, ACT, SAT results; (9) letters of admission; and (10) hazing and harassment agreements.

ANALYSIS

The first issue before the Court is whether the education records released to the Office of the State Attorney by Florida A&M University are confidential and exempt from Florida's Public Records Act. The next issue before the Court is whether all personally identifiable information as defined by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act<sup>1</sup> must be redacted from the education records prior to redisclosure to the media. For the reasons set forth below, the Court finds the records are not confidential and exempt from Florida's Public Records Act, and that the Court cannot order the redaction of all personally identifiable information prior to redisclosure.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) defines the term "education records" as "those records, files, documents and other materials which (1) contain information directly related to a student; and (2) are maintained by an educational agency or institution or by a person acting for such agency or institution." 20 U.S.C.A. § 1232g(a)(4)(A) (emphasis added). See also § 1006.52, Florida Statutes (2012) (providing the term "education records" is defined by FERPA). These "education records" are confidential and exempt from Florida's Public Records Act. § 1006.52(1), Fla. Stat. (2012). However, they may be released "in accordance with and as permitted by the FERPA." § 1006.52(2), Fla. Stat. (2012).<sup>2</sup>

The term [Personally Identifiable Information] includes, but is not limited to –

- 1) The student's name;
- 2) The name of the student's parent or other family members;
- 3) The address of the student or student's family;
- 4) A personal identifier, such as the student's social security number, student number, or biometric record;
- 5) Other indirect identifiers, such as the student's date of birth, place of birth, and mother's maiden name;
- 6) Other information that, alone or in combination, is linked or linkable to a specific student that would allow a reasonable person in the school community, who does not have personal knowledge of the relevant circumstances, to identify the student with reasonable certainty; or
- 7) Information requested by a person who the educational agency or institution reasonably believes knows the identity of the student to whom the education record relates.

FERPA provides nonconsensual disclosure of education records is permitted when the disclosure is made with a lawfully issued subpoena or court order that dictates the educational institution is not to “disclose to any person the existence or contents of the subpoena or any information furnished in response to the subpoena.” 20 U.S.C.A. § 1232g(b)(1)(J)(ii). See also 34 C.F.R. § 99.31(a)(9)(ii)(B) (providing the educational agency or institution does not have to notify the parent or eligible student of the order or subpoena in advance of compliance when the “issuing agency has ordered that the existence of the contents of the subpoena or the information furnished in response to the subpoena not be disclosed.”). Significantly, limitations on redisclosures are not applicable to disclosures made pursuant to such a subpoena. See 34 C.F.R. §§ 99.33(a)(1), (c).<sup>3</sup> The U.S. Department of Education has explained that:

The redisclosure provisions of 34 C.F.R. § 99.33 do not apply to records that have been disclosed pursuant to a court order or lawfully issued subpoena. Once an institution determines that the subpoena or judicial order is valid and makes a reasonable attempt to provide advance notice in sufficient time to allow the student to take appropriate action,<sup>4</sup> the institution is not responsible for taking any further action to protect the records against redisclosure, even to the press.

A public postsecondary educational institution may not release a student’s education records without the written consent of the student to any individual, agency, or organization, except in accordance with and as permitted by the FERPA.

An educational agency or institution may disclose personally identifiable information from an education record only on the condition that the party to whom the information is disclosed will not disclose the information to any other party without the prior consent of the parent or eligible student.

34 C.F.R. § 99.33(c) provides:

Paragraph (a) of this section does not apply to disclosures under §§ 99.31(a)(8), (9), (11), (12), (14), (15), and (16), and to information that postsecondary institutions are required to disclose under the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act, 20 U.S.C. 1092(f) (Clery Act), to the accuser and accused regarding the outcome of any campus disciplinary proceeding brought alleging a sexual offense.

<sup>4</sup> In the instant case, Florida A&M University was not required to “make[] a reasonable attempt to provide advance notice in sufficient time to allow the student[s] to take appropriate action” because the subpoena dictated the University was not to disclose the existence or contents of the subpoena. See 34 C.F.R. § 99.33(a)(1), (c).

2012) (same). Neither does Florida's Public Records Act provide an exemption for education records, nor place any restrictions on the redisclosure of such. See § 119.071, Fla. Stat. (2012).

In the instant case, Florida A&M University's nonconsensual disclosure of the subject education records was permitted based on the fact that the State Attorney's Office issued a subpoena duces tecum ordering that Florida A&M University not disclose to any person the existence or contents of the subpoena or any information furnished in response thereto. (See Subpoenas, attached). Significantly, because the records were disclosed pursuant to such a subpoena, FERPA's limitations on redisclosures are not applicable to the State Attorney's Office. See 34 C.F.R. § 99.33(a)(1), (c). For this reason, Florida A&M University's effort to notify and receive consent from the subject students is inconsequential. As the U.S. Department of Education explained, at this juncture, "the [education] institution is not responsible for taking any further action to protect the records against redisclosure, even to the press." See Dep't of Educ. Op., May 26, 1995, available at <http://www2.ed.gov/policy/gen/guid/fpco/ferpa/library/ferpayale.html> (last visited June 19, 2012) (emphasis added). Therefore, as FERPA's limitations on redisclosure are inapplicable, and as Florida's Public Records Act does not provide an exemption for education records, the Court finds the State Attorney's Office must comply with the media's public records request and release the education records.

With the exception of the following two cases out of the Fifth and First District Courts of Appeal, there is little to guide the Court's decision as to the issue of redaction. In WFTV, Inc. v. School Board of Seminole, 874 So. 2d 48, 54-55 (Fla. 5th DCA 2004), the Fifth District Court of Appeal held that redacted student discipline forms and surveillance videotape were confidential and exempt from section 119.07(1), Florida Statutes, and that the School Board was prohibited from disclosing the requested records to WFTV.

However, this case was decided prior to the 2009 amendment to Florida's education records exemption, which adopts the definition of "education records" set forth in FERPA, and provides that the records are confidential and exempt from Florida's Public Records Act except "in accordance with and as permitted by the FERPA." § 1006.52(1), Fla. Stat. (2012).

In the National Collegiate Athletic Association v. Associated Press, 18 So. 3d 1201, 1211 (Fla. 1st DCA 2009), review denied, 37 So. 3d 848 (Fla. 2010), the First District Court of Appeal considered FERPA and the 2009 amendments to the Florida Statutes. The First District held that a transcript of a NCAA hearing and a NCAA committee response pertained to allegations of misconduct by Florida State University's Athletic Department, and only tangentially related to the students. Id. Recognizing that FERPA does not prohibit the release of records so long as the student identifying information is redacted, the First District also held that the transcript and the response would not be protected under FERPA since the requested records had been redacted to remove student identifying information, and, therefore, were not "education records." Id.

The Court finds the NCAA case is distinguishable from the instant case in that the records at issue were created and maintained by the NCAA, a private organization, and were subject to disclosure as public records on the basis of an agency theory. Specifically, the documents were received and examined by lawyers for Florida State University, a public agency, and used in the course of its business. FERPA and its attendant redaction mandates were applicable by virtue of the fact that Florida State University possessed the records.

However, the Office of the State Attorney is not bound by FERPA, a Federal law that applies to educational agencies and institutions that receive funding under any program administered by the U.S. Department of Education. 20 U.S.C.A. § 1232(g); 34 C.F.R. Part 99. Rather, the State Attorney's Office is bound by Florida's Public Records Act, which provides that an agency may not redact information from a public record in the absence of a statute providing for the confidentiality or exemption of such information. See § 119.07(1)(d), Fla. Stat. (2012) (providing "[a] person who has custody of a public record who asserts that an exemption applies to a part of such record shall redact that portion of the record to which an exemption has been asserted and validly applies, and such person shall produce the remainder of such record for inspection and copying."). Florida's Public Records Act does not provide any such exemption for personally identifiable information as defined by FERPA. See § 119.071, Fla. Stat. (2012).

Accordingly, the Court can only order the State Attorney's Office to redact those portions of the records to which an exemption validly applies prior to complying with the media's public records request. This includes, but is not limited to: (1) social security numbers; and (2) driver's license numbers. See § 119.071, Fla. Stat. (2012). The Court further orders that Defendants similarly redact the education records in their possession if and when they disclose the records to another party.

The Court recognizes that these education records contain very sensitive material, and is reluctant to enter an Order mandating the release of such. However, it is without authority to rule differently. The Court can only hope that the media treats these records with the respect contemplated by FERPA.

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that:

1. Defendants' "Motions for Protective Order" are DENIED.
2. The Office of the State Attorney for the Ninth Judicial Circuit and Defendants SHALL REDACT the education records in compliance with Florida Statutes PRIOR TO DISCLOSURE.
3. Copies of the Subpoenas are attached to this Order and incorporated by reference.

DONE AND ORDERED in Chambers at Orlando, Orange County, Florida, this _____ day of June, 2012.
