2013 HOLIDAY CONSUMER PROTECTION GUIDE

STATE OF FLORIDA

PAM BONDI
ATTORNEY GENERAL

November 27, 2013

Dear Floridians,

Happy Holidays! We are providing this holiday shopping guide to help you, Florida consumers, have a safer and more enjoyable shopping experience.

We have included tips on purchasing items online, avoiding charity scams, and helping you stay on budget. We have also included a list of items recalled by the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission in the past year because of safety or health issues, including toys and other products that might cause safety issues for children. We urge you to review this list for unsafe items that need to be removed from your home. Please also keep this guide handy and review it as you purchase and receive gifts.

If you have any questions on product recalls or any of the other issues discussed in this guide, feel free to contact my Citizen Services hotline at 1-866-966-7226, or visit our website at MyFloridaLegal.com. You can also find updated lists of recalled items at the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's website, cpsc.gov/en/Recalls/.

Have a wonderful and safe holiday season!

Sincerely,

Holiday Shopping Tips

The holidays are a time to be especially mindful of ways your purchases can cost you more than you expect. Here are a few tips to ensure that you get the most for your money and the most out of your holiday:

- When shopping online, it's wise to pay with a credit card instead of a debit card if possible. Both cards allow you to dispute a charge if the merchandise never arrives or is different from what was ordered. However, with a debit card, the price charged may be immediately deducted from your bank account.
- And don't forget, shopping online often comes with additional costs, such as shipping and handling fees. Be sure to comparison shop even if an item is "on sale" and always do the math where there are additional charges possible. If Company A is charging $30 for the product, with free shipping, while Company B is charging $25, with a $10 shipping fee added, company A is actually the better deal.
- Some retailers may offer layaway plans or other structured payment plans so that you can pay for that must-have holiday gift over time or at a later time. Before you agree to such a plan, be sure to ask whether the retailer charges fees to use its payment programs and whether the payments and fees are refundable if a purchase is cancelled.
- If you expect to purchase gift cards this holiday season, be aware that federal law now prohibits gift card issuers from requiring certain fees or expiration dates for the cards.
- Only deal with reputable dealers. If you are in doubt about whether the merchandise is real or new, check out the retailer with our office by calling our Consumer Hotline at 1-866-966-7226, or call the Better Business Bureau in your area.
- Keep your personal information in a safe place. Never provide your credit card, bank account information, or Social Security Number to a stranger calling over the phone. No reputable vendor or service provider will ever initiate a call and ask you for this information over the phone.
- Keep your receipts! And, be sure you understand a retailer's return and refund policies so that you can return any unwanted items in a timely manner and get a full refund. And, when shopping on line, don't forget to print your receipt and hold onto it until you have received your purchase and determined it is undamaged and will be kept.

Holiday Charity Scams

The holiday season brings a sizable increase in charitable giving each year as many of us open up our wallets to donate to a favorite cause, help someone in need, or otherwise seek to support our community and our neighbors. Charitable donations also make great holiday gifts.

Unfortunately, the holidays also bring out a high volume of scam artists always ready to take advantage of the holiday spirit of giving. Here are a few tips to help you spot and avoid charity scams during this holiday season:

- Be sure you know that the charity is legitimate. If you are not sure, check out the charity with the Better Business Bureau, the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, which licenses and regulates charities in this state, or call the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline at 1-866-966-7226.
- Never give your credit card number or bank account information to a caller on the phone or someone who sent you an unsolicited e-mail. If you are interested in donating to a charity that has initiated contact with you, ask them to send you a pledge form and information about the charity in the mail. Legitimate charities should have no problem with this request.
- Watch for "similar sounding" charities. It's not unusual for scam artists to choose names that sound like the names of legitimate charities.
- Do your homework, review the solicitation carefully. Be sure you know understand how much of the donation will actually go toward the work of the charity as opposed to administrative expenses. Charities are required to register with the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and report the breakdown of their financial spending. To check whether a charity is registered and to learn more about its spending, please go to www.freshfromflorida.com and click on the Florida Charities Gift Givers' Guide.
- Most tax-exempt organizations are also required to file an annual return or notice with the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS Code requires automatic revocation of a charity's tax exempt status (some charities are excepted from this requirement) if it fails to file a return for three consecutive years. Publication of an organization's name on the Auto-Revocation list on the IRS website helps potential donors determine the status of a charity. To learn more about the tax-exempt status of a charity, go to www.irs.gov and click on Charities and Non-Profits topics.

Product Recalls

With so many purchases to be made during the holiday season, it's more important than ever during this busy time to remain vigilant in checking to ensure that the purchases you make are safe.

What follows is a compilation of 2013 Product Recalls in a single comprehensive, easy to use Guide we hope you will consult as you make your holiday gift purchases. The Guide reproduces details about toys, baby items, sporting and recreational goods, and household products recalled by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission between November 1, 2012 and November 8, 2013 and posted on the agency's website as of November 8, 2013. For more information regarding these products or to check for recalls issued since November 8, please go to www.cpsc.gov/en/Recalls/.

Dangerous and defective products are the subject of recalls every year, with over 200 products being recalled last year alone. When a product is recalled, the law requires manufacturers and retailers to remove the products from their shelves. Products do sometimes slip by undetected on shelves or may have been purchased before the recall. Many products may also continue to be offered for sale online well after the recall through any of the many online reseller websites. So, it is always important to do your research to make sure that the products you are buying are safe and free of defect.

Taking a few minutes now, before you make your holiday purchases, to peruse this compilation of 2013 recalled items will ensure a safer and more enjoyable holiday for you and yours.
