Happy Holidays! My office is providing this holiday shopping guide to help you, Florida consumers, have a safer and more enjoyable shopping experience.

We have included tips on purchasing items online, avoiding charity scams and methods to help you stick to your budget. We have also included a list of items recalled by the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission in the past year. These products have been recalled by their manufacturers because of safety and health concerns, including toys and other home products that may be unsafe for your children. I urge you to review this list for unsafe items that may need to be removed from your home. Please also keep this guide handy and review it as you purchase and receive gifts this holiday season.

If you have any questions on product recalls or any of the other issues discussed in this guide, feel free to contact my Citizens Services hotline at 1-866-966-7226, or visit our website at MyFloridaLegal.com. You can also find updated lists of recalled items at the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's website CPSC.gov/en/Recalls.

Have a wonderful and safe holiday season!

Holiday Shopping Tips

The holidays are a time to be especially mindful of ways your purchases can cost you more than you expect. Here are a few tips to ensure that you get the most for your money and the most out of your holiday:

- Before you head out to get the latest toy or gadgets, make a list. Know what you've already purchased and who you still need to find gifts for. And share your purchases with anyone else responsible for buying gifts in your family. This way, you're less likely to purchase duplicate gifts or purchase an item for someone you've already gotten a gift for.
- When shopping online, it's wise to pay with a credit card instead of a debit card if possible. Both allow you to dispute a charge if the merchandise never arrives or is different from what was ordered. However, with a debit card, the price will have already been deducted from your bank account and it will take time to get your money back.
- When ordering online, look to ensure that your browser has a secure connection. In the address bar, a padlock should appear if your browsing session is secure.
- Some credit card providers offer one-time card numbers to be used for online transactions to further protect your financial information. Contact your account holder to see if they offer such a service.
- Don't forget, when shopping online, there are often additional costs, such as shipping and handling fees. Be sure to include additional charges when comparing prices across websites.
- Some retailers may offer layaway plans or other payment plans so you can pay for that must-have holiday gift over time or at a later time. Before you agree to such a plan, be sure to ask whether the retailer charges fees to use its payment programs and whether the payments and fees are refundable if a purchase is cancelled.
- Keep your personal information safe. Never provide your credit card, bank account information or Social Security number to a stranger. No reputable vendor or service provider will ever initiate a call and ask you for this information over the phone.
- Keep your receipts! And be sure you understand a retailer's return and refund policies so you can return any unwanted items in a timely manner and get a full refund.

Holiday Charity Scams

The holiday season brings a sizable increase in charitable giving each year as many of us open up our wallets to donate to a favorite cause, help someone in need, or otherwise seek to support our community and our neighbors. Charitable donations also make great holiday gifts.

Unfortunately, the holidays also bring out a high volume of scam artists always ready to take advantage of the holiday spirit of giving. Here are a few tips to help you spot and avoid charity scams during this holiday season:

- Be sure you know that the charity is legitimate. In order to determine whether the charity soliciting money is legitimate, first check to see if they are a registered charity with the state Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services at www.freshfromflorida.com or by calling 1-800-HELP-FLA. You may also contact the Better Business Bureau's Wise Giving Alliance at (703) 276-0100 to determine if the charity you are donating to has any complaints against them.
- Never give your credit card number or bank account information to a caller on the phone or someone who sent you an unsolicited email. If you are interested in donating to a charity that has initiated contact with you, ask them to send you a pledge form and information about the charity in the mail. Legitimate charities should have no problem with this request.
- Watch for similar sounding charities. It's not unusual for scam artists to choose names that sound like the names of legitimate, widely known charities.
- Do your homework and review the solicitation carefully. Be sure you understand how much of the donation will actually go toward the work of the charity as opposed to administrative expenses. Charities are required to register with the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and report the breakdown of their financial spending. To learn more about a charity's spending, please go to www.freshfromflorida.com and click on the Florida Charities Gift Givers' Guide.
- Most tax-exempt organizations are also required to file an annual return or notice with the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS Code requires automatic revocation of a charity's tax exempt status (some charities are exempt from this requirement) if it fails to file a return for three consecutive years. Publication of an organization's name on the Auto-Revocation list on the IRS website helps potential donors determine the status of a charity. To learn more about the tax-exempt status of a charity, go to www.irs.gov and search the Charities and Non-Profits topics.

Product Recalls

With so many purchases to be made during the holiday season, it's more important than ever during this busy time of year to remain vigilant in checking to ensure that the purchases you make are safe.

What follows is a compilation of 2014 product recalls in a comprehensive, easy-to-use guide that we hope you will consult as you make your holiday gift purchases. The guide reproduces details about toys, baby items, sporting and recreational goods, and household products recalled by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission between December 1, 2013 and November 14, 2014. For more information regarding these products or to check for recalls issued since November 14, please go to cpsc.gov/en/Recalls/.

Dangerous and defective products are the subject of recalls every year, with more than 200 products being recalled in the last year alone. When a product is recalled, the law requires manufacturers and retailers to remove the products from their shelves. However, products do sometimes slip by undetected on shelves or may have been purchased before the recall. Many products may also continue to be offered for sale online well after the recall through any of the many online reseller websites. So, it is always important to do your research to make sure that the products you are buying are safe and free of defect.

Taking a few minutes now, before you make your holiday purchases, to peruse this compilation of 2014 recalled items will ensure a safer and more enjoyable holiday for you and yours.
