Attorney General Moody Urges Floridians to Celebrate New Year's Eve Safely

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—As Floridians get ready to ring in the New Year, Attorney General Ashley Moody is urging everyone to celebrate safely. The National Safety Council estimates that more than 400 people may die on U.S. roads during the New Year's holiday. Attorney General Moody reminds citizens to be mindful of surroundings, never drive impaired and consider the safety of themselves and others.

Attorney General Ashley Moody said, "New Year's Eve is an exciting time to reflect on the past year and celebrate a new beginning. However, it is imperative to celebrate responsibly. I encourage all Floridians to plan ahead, have a designated driver and take measures to ensure you bring in the new year safely."

Attorney General Moody offers the following safe New Year's Eve celebration tips:

- Establish a designated driver or use a rideshare service if consuming alcohol;
- Stay vigilant on the roads as there may be an increase in drivers under the influence;
- Be aware of surroundings at all times, especially in crowded or unfamiliar places; and
- Use caution when handling fireworks and adhere to local laws and regulations.
